

Mendelson Residence

The 1960s-style home was gutted and brought into modern day by increasing square footage by incorporating a second tower and utilizing unused attic space. An open floor plan and contemporary features, such as a brushed silver staircase railing, maximize living space for its current family.

PROJECT DETAILS

Completed: 2006
Cost: $200,000

